A Word from the GABC President

Michael Claus

Dear Members and Friends of the GABC,

we are soon celebrating Christmas and welcome a new year. Looking back at the year 2010 we first of all have to be happy and satisfied that we made it again unscarred through the Hurricane season, which is always a great plus, but the economical weather forecast has not been as bright and still is not - for the USA in particular. Although the economy bounced back big time in 2010 on a global scale with Germany leading the pack on a positive note with previously unimaginable growth figures, unfortunately the USA is limping behind other industrialized nations. Nothing is certain in our days and the need for hope is apparent. So let's hope that the tide is also turning here in the US and the economy is picking up like almost anywhere else, and let's hope that the financial crisis in some European countries like Greece and Ireland will not lead to yet another disaster. I believe the GABC had a very successful year 2010 as our cooperation with the Beacon Council, the GACC Atlanta and the closer cooperation with a number of European Chambers is bearing its fruits and makes for very interesting events, as the ever increasing number of participants is showing. Snowfall all over Germany these days, driving chaos and flight delays, makes those of us who actually lived in Germany even more happy that we are now living here in South Florida, particularly when the muggy summer weather is behind us and we look forward to 'our kind' of winter weather.

On behalf of the entire Board of your GABC I wish you a merry Christmas, Happy Holidays, and a wonderful, successful and healthy Year 2011, and I hope to see many of you this coming Sunday, December 5 at our Annual Christmas Gala. The Santa, the Weihnachtsmann, has already announced his appearance as well, and no, despite the name, it is not me.....

News from our Member Robert Klemm Photography

KLEMM PUBLISHES BOOK OF LANDSCAPES OF CORAL GA- BLES

Robert Klemm photographer left the magnificent medieval architecture of his native Cologne, Germany only to fall in love with the neo-Mediterranean style of Coral Gables. Klemm, who now resides here permanently, has just published a handsome coffee-table book of photographs of "The City Beautiful." He says he shot the book in black and white "in order to capture the design and spirit" of the classic buildings and lush landscape for which Coral Gables is famous. Striking monumental edifices such as Venetian Pool, the Biltmore Hotel and the Water Tower are captured by his lens in a clear, objective photographic statement of their romantic designs. Pictured also are many of the distinctive residences and parks that resulted from the vision of Gables original developer George Merrick, the visionary who sent his architects and planners to Spain, France and Italy to retrieve a classic Mediterranean design vocabulary for his new city. Klemm's book, "Landscapes of Coral Gables, on sale at Books and Books Coral Gables store.

Currently Robert Klemm's large black and white prints from his book "Landscapes of Coral Gables" are embellishing the walls of the Consulate General of the Federal Republic of Germany. This exhibition will remain through February of 2011.

Robert Klemm frequently photographs events for the GABC.

Ilya and Emilia Kabakov at Wolfgang Roth & Partners, Fine Art

Ilya and Emilia Kabakov: "Someone under the Carpet" will be at Wolfgang Roth & Partners, Fine Art from November 30th, 2010 until January 15th, 2011. This exhibition is the first of its scale to be held in Miami by the internationally renowned couple. The exhibition includes early and recent installations and projects by the Russian-born Kabakovs. An opening reception will be held on Tuesday, November 30th from 7-10pm, to coincide with Art Basel Miami Beach 2010.

The central piece of the exhibition is the installation, Someone's Crawling under the Floor (1998). The viewer enters and encounters a large space almost entirely enclosed except for a small opening. Looking in, one notices that something is happening in the middle of the space – under the floor - or more precisely, under the carpet. Upon closer examination, it becomes apparent that a human figure is crawling very slowly. The contours of the body, arms and legs, are discernable. It is crawling slowly, tracing circles "under the carpet".

Adjacent to this installation, The Reading Room (1995), offers visitors an opportunity to interact directly with historical and informative texts, which illuminate the Kabakovs' lives and works. Here, tables and chairs are placed, reminiscent of a library, enabling a leisurely examination of these materials.

In the second room of the 8,000 square foot gallery, the viewer encounters works from the Kabakovs' The Flying Komarov. Artistic and textual elements from the album are displayed in the presence of four large-scale carpets found on the surrounding walls. The carpets present images of people flying in the air, high over the life below them. The images on the carpets reference universal themes such as survival, escapism, personal fears and phobias. The room emanates a sense of childlike fantasy bordering on the fantastic.

Past GABC Events:

European Business Seminar Series

The European Chambers hosted the fifth and sixth seminar of the European Business Seminar Series 2010.

Both seminars were held at the Brickell Bay Office Tower with breakfast courtesy of the Brickell Bay Office Tower and coffee courtesy of ReKico.

At the fifth seminar Ilona Vega Jaramillo from Enterprise Florida offered insights on developments in the area of renewable and alternative energy, and opportunities available in the State of Florida.

On the sixth seminar guest speaker Hannes Hofmann, CFA, JPMorgan Private Bank gave a current economic and investment outlook on "How to invest in side-ways markets".

Both seminars were well attended and were once again proof for the successful cooperation of the European chambers.

The Spain-United States Chamber of Commerce, the French-American Chamber of Commerce, the German American Business Chamber, the Italy-America Chamber of Commerce Southeast, and the British-American Business Council Miami put together the seminar series earlier this year which turned out to be a great success. Therefore the Chambers are currently planning the next seminar series for 2011.
